THE LION KING

As the sun rises across the African plain, animals gather at Pride Rock, where Mufasa, the lion king lives. Rafiki, a wise old baboon, lifts a tiny cub for them to see. It is Simba.

Simba grows into an adorable youngster, who loves to play with his buddy, Nala, a lioness cub. But most of all, Simba loves to be with his father, Mufasa.

When Mufasa tells Simba he will be king one day, Simba can't wait. But Scar, Mufasa's brother wants to be king and plans to get rid of Mufasa and his son.

First, Scar lures Simba to an elephant graveyard where dangerous hyenas wait. When that doesn't work, he lures Simba into a gorge full of stampeding animals. After Mufasa saves his son, he is killed. Unhappy and afraid, Simba runs away to the jungle.

There he meets Pumbaa, a warthog, and Timon, a meerkat. Simba's funny new friends show him how to eat bugs and to lead life with no worries.

Then one day, Nala appears. She tells Simba that Scar has taken over Pride Rock and he must go back to claim his place as king.

Simba is afraid, until Rafiki appears and shows Simba his father's image. "Remember who you are," Mufasa tells him.

Simba returns to Pride Rock with Nala, Pumbaa and Timon. He battles Scar and wins!

Time passes. . . animals gather at Pride Rock to see Rafiki hold up a tiny cub. It is Simba and Nala's son. A new lion king is born and the circle of life has been completed once again.
